SISTER MARY FIDELIS.

Miss Lulu Taylor Takes the Black Veil and Bids the World Good-Bye.

She Becomes a Nun of the Visitation Order—History of Her Efforts to Obtain Possession of Her Property.

Sister Mary Fideli, known to the world as Miss Lulu Taylor, took the vows of a professed nun at the Visitation Convent this afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the presence of Archdeacon Ryan, who officiated, and a number of relatives and friends of the family. The services were performed, and the young lady, who in April left the Convent to ostensibly travel the world again, pronounced with trembling lips the sacred vows that bound her forever after to the life of a recluse.

The condition of Miss Taylor's connection with the Visitation Order, though brief, is replete with interest. Fidelity, according to her, led her to a religious determination to lead a religious life she resolved to dispose of the worldly effects of her father, late George E. Taylor, amounting to some $100,000. She turned to John McGuire and Alvin Meiller, conveying to her sisters, Miss Theresa and Miss Lulu Taylor, the bulk of the sum, and the balance to her brother, George Taylor, and the remainder about $30,000 to the Sisters of the Visitation, under the order of the Sisters of St. Francis. Dr. Sibley, better known as the Visitation Order, $6,000, was passed into the coffers of the convent, but the good sister who alone remained after she had been in the convent a short time to return to the world and claim the balance of her rich legacy, died of a sudden death. The condition of the deeds executed before she went into the convent was that in the event of

and returning to the world her property was to be returned to her. Towards the latter part of April of this year she left the convent, and in the event, went to a friend's house on Cass Avenue, and formally notified her sisters of her return to the world, and of the fact that that was merely a plot to secure the property for the convent. When Lulu and her father that she really and honestly had returned to the world with no intention of going back to the convent, the world willingly received her all that she had given them, but otherwise they were inclined to keep it. The case was referred to the Visitation Order, Taylor and her trustees. This was filed April 23 last, and made returnable to the June term of the Circuit Court. It was stated that before suit was brought, a compromise was offered by which they agreed to relinquish $20,000 and their sister remain in the convent. This she rejected and said she would have

ALL THE MONEY

As soon as the money became public through the court negotiations, were made to shut it up. Several conferences were held, the result of which was the discharge of the suit, and the return of the money to the care of Taylor or her property. After waiting a reasonable time she returned to the convent and took the black veil. It is doubtful if the intended behests were carried out upon the holy order of which she is now a sister.

Miners Coming Out.

PIRATES, August 15.—The situation in the fourth pool to day is more favorable to the strikers. The miners working at the New mines came out yesterday. They are not yet clear that the strike will last forty-eight hours, the strike will be general. Mr. Neel says he has two men for every vacancy. He has noticed his men who are out, however, that he will not be able to get them back to work again as long as they remain out, and they being property holders can recover from them.

A Postmaster Arrested.

By Telegraph to the Post Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., August 15.—J. H. Case, Postmaster at Mountain Home, Ark., was to day taken before Commissioner Hempstead on a charge of bezzling a registered letter which had been sent to Sheriff Byler from Batesville. The Commissioner held the accused the sum of $1,000 to appear at the October term. Case is an old and highly respected citizen, and is believed to be a fraud set up on him. Sheriff Byler is on his bond.

The Erie Railway.

NEW YORK, August 15.—It is stated that the president of the Erie, who tendered to John King, who will accept it under certain conditions, King was formerly the receiver of the mill and Misses Ippi. It is reported that the company in to be reorganized and six new directors elected, among them D. O. Mills, David Dow and John King. The English holders it is said have agreed to advance the needed money to carry out the reorganization.

THE WORLD makes the dreadful suggestion that BLAINE should bring libel suits against those who have defamed his public character. This would bring in most of his present supporters.

THE ENEMIES of BEN BUTLER are now circulating a story that he intends to start a new two-cent paper in Boston. He has often been accused of being a bad man, but this is the first time that he has ever been accused of softening of the brain.

THE PHILOSOPHER J. N., who wishes no praise from the press of the nation, informs us that he is delighted with the nomination of Gen. MARMADUKE. J. N. is no politician, but he reasons out the situation philosophical principles, and more than a year ago he predicted the success of MARMADUKE.

THE TRADITION that Presidential candidates should not take the stump is no longer respected. BLAINE has made the tour of the Maine Colleges, LOGAN is "swinging round the circle" of Western New York, and BUTLER is making speeches at Land League meetings. Under the circumstances CLEVELAND would be justified in coming to St. Louis to open the Exposition.

THAT mob attack upon a Mormon meeting in Tennessee was only another Mountain Meadow massacre on a diminished scale, and the authorities of the State and county in which it occurred will have to punish the murderers or incur a responsibility somewhat similar to that which the Mormon atrocity has laid on the hierarchy of the Mormon Church. It is not improbable that the Tennessee mob was organized by relatives of the families butchered at Mountain Meadows.

THE PEOPLE of Leavenworth, Kansas, are excited over the discovery of a newly arrived Polish family dying of starvation in that land of plenty. The death of the wife and mother from sheer want called attention to the fact that the Poles were starving to death because they were too honest to steal, too timid to rob, and had not enough English to beg. No native American will ever starve to death on conscientious scruples in the midst of plenty, and it is particularly difficult for Western folks to understand how any people can grow up such helpless fools as these starving Poles were.

NOW, if BLAINE would only bring a libel suit against the Globe-Democrat and his Cincinnati, Chicago and New York organs for accusing him of being a scoundrel, he will probably resolve itself into the tattle of mischievous pupils, and what Kentuckians call "nigger news" about an amorous young pedagogue and a young "schoolma'am" who were too spoony and too innocent to be their guard against village gossip. It upon no better foundation than this the Sentinel has made that shocking charge, it has committed a gross violation of the sanctities of private life, a villainous breach of the decencies of political warfare, a brutal outrage upon an innocent family of children, a disgusting abuse of the privilege and power of the press. Two wrongs do not make a right, and no cruel and base perversion of fact put forth by BLAINE's campaign managers to blacken the honorable private life of CLEVELAND can justify such a dastardly retaliation.

WHAT SHOULD BE PUBLISHED?

St. Louis, August 13, 1884.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was struck by the observation of your enterprising correspondent in his graphic account of the disgusting details of the alleged cannibalism of the survivors of the "frozen" party, that although the facts had been hitherto summarized, the press had refrained from a publication of the same from motives of humanity and a regard for the American name.

Why in the name of common decency the press should consider that obligation to be now relaxed I am too dull of comprehension to understand. In the name of reason, is there nothing so shocking, so disgraceful to humanity, to the American people or to individual members of our society that the "enterprising" press of the day would refrain from the publication of it? I know not. Taking the above circumstance in connection with the fact that the leading papers of both parties are at present engaged in the detectable controversy as to which of the Presidential candidates seduced the greater number of women, I feel that the Americans, as a people, will tolerate such outrages upon decency, richly deserve the contempt and the sneers and jeers of other enlightened nations.

COSMOPOLITAN.

AS far as the GREENLY case is concerned ("Cosmopolitan's" censures are foolish and uncalled for. Lieut. GREENLY was an officer of the United States Army, in command of Government troops, and in charge of a Government expedition. He was a public servant intrusted with public interests, and everything relating to the discharge of his trust is public property. When he poses as a Democrat, he is going beyond the license of burlesque and buffoonery which very roughly some politicians who have been all things to all parties for a consideration—a blatant demagogue who has degraded Labor by his attempts to let it and lead it by the nose; a consistent ally of monopolies and corporations during the Evans of Congressional life; a prodigal lavish of the public domain on railroads; a greedy money grabber and mountebank reformer—takes upon himself the character of a representative of Democracy.

WE respect the Anti-Monopoly sentiment of the country. We recognize the importance of checking the encroachments of corporate wealth on popular rights. We earnestly desire to secure a change in legislation which shall deal justly by the people instead of selling favors to rich monopolies willing to pay for them. But we know that the Democracy is the power by which alone these dangerous influences can be checked and the rights of the people as well as the just rights of corporations receive equal protection.

CUTTING OFF WOMEN'S NOSES.

From the Times of India, July 8. The horrible crime of mutilating women by cutting off their noses is so common in Bhopal as to call for the most stringent repression, and nothing, we imagine, will repress it but the free use of the lash. In the Sessions ending yesterday, Mr. Justice Scott had to hear three—we might say five—of these cases one after another. He postponed his sentence for a week, and we were in hope that he would in each case order the criminals to be flogged within an ace of their lives.

Eventually, however, he sentenced them severally to what he had ascertained to be the usual punishment three years' rigorous imprisonment. We are inclined to regret that the learned Sessions Judge, new as he is to the country, did not throw precedent over altogether. Surely these are cases in which the law is too severe, and most fitting punishment and the best deterrent.

ESTIMATED by the military inflicted, even the most severe penalties would seem too trivial, and if the law does not permit of flogging in the cases of such cruel mutilation, the law should be altered. The miserable women who are mutilated in this way, are, of course, rendered hideous ever afterward, and, because they are women, it is simply impossible to calculate the misery and degradation that they will experience during the rest of their lives. No amount of imprisonment will eradicate a crime that is still evidently a customary form of marital punishment among the lower classes. But a wholesome terror of the cat-o'-nine-tails is common to the degraded classes all the world over.

NEW LIGHT ON BLAINE.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

A great deal is being said about the opinions which Senator George F. Edmunds held concerning James G. Blaine in 1880, and inquiries are made as to the reliability of certain statements made concerning them. It is well known in Vermont that Mr. Edmunds then stood with Judge Poland in disf trust of life in that winter camp shall be made known. There is only one thing worse than cannibalism, and that is the dreadful crime which the friends of the dead men hint at, in the conjecture that the camp was divided into two factions, and that the survivors saved their own lives only by sacrificing their comrades.

CLEVELAND, and quite as cruel and cowardly as the offense against which BLAINE appeals. This was done with Mr. BLAINE's full knowledge, and it was also with his consent. A word from him could have stopped it, but he never spoke that word. Only yesterday the Globe-Democrat reprinted, from an obscure sheet in Illinois, a repetition of the vile calumny against CLEVELAND, an article which had neither news nor novelty, nor freshness; an article which was reprinted simply because it was a repetition of the exploded lie, and this is only a sample of the Blaine campaign tactics. No display of dramatic indignation can obscure the plain fact that it is BLAINE himself who is chiefly responsible for the campaign of slander which this country is now enduring under protest.

THIS is powerful testimony, brethren. It was conscientiously presented by a calm, cool, cautious man and a veteran lawyer, one who uses language with discrimination and the fullest knowledge of its meaning. The judgment declared was not born out of the partisan ferocity of a political campaign, but was the deliberate statement of intense conviction; and it is justly entitled to great weight when the people come to judge of one, who as Speaker of the House trafficked for private gain on his official position.

MR. COLE'S WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

From the Danville Advertiser.

Mr. A. N. Cole of Wellsville, the veteran ex-editor, has made discoveries in the matter of irrigation, and secured a patent therefor, which soon destined to work a great revolution in the value of lands.

By his system he grows strawberries to the size of peaches, and increases the size, beauty and perfection of all fruits to a degree to defy credence.

He says in a letter in the Wellsville Free Press: "I grow such turnips, beets, cabbage, and cauliflower as have never been seen on the Atlantic coast. A full bushel of tomatoes to the plant can be grown, and that, too, of enormous size and beauty. As stated in previous columns, the same pods can be grown to the acre, all forms in shape and with fungus, deadliest enemy of plant life, securing root, stalk, bud, blossom, and fruit in completeness perfection. This is done by hanging up on our hillsides in a succession of trenches, deep into the hard pan, aggregations of water to be held in reserve to find their way by the laws of gravity, in even and uniform currents of subterranean flow to the streams in the valleys, securing such perfection of irrigation in their track as to give to plant life such as has never before been so much as approximated."

EXTREMES IN IDAHO.

From the Idaho Enterprise.

On the sand plains down by Hawthorne it so hot that mercury boils in the thermometers unless the bulb is kept wrapped in wet sponge. A dinner of water thrown up into the air evaporates before reaching the ground. The only living creatures seen about Walker Lake are the pelicans, and in flying from one shore to the other during the middle of the day, they are obliged to descend two or three times and fill their pouches with water. The day at the bottom of the lake gets so hot during the day that bathers going into the water of Evening obliged to wear boots to prevent burning their feet.

SNOW BANKS are still plentiful near town, on the slopes of Mount Gilcrest, Scowden, Harvey and Homier, on the southerly side of Mill Creek Canyon and on Mount Hecto, north of town, while on the west, circling the head of the canyon, large, unbroken fields of snow loom up against the sky on

McClintock Peak, Mount Bill Williams and the Sea

Lion.

ENGLISH SQUIRES.

How the Affairs of a County are Conducted.

Repairing Roads and the Punishment of Small Offenses.

The following letter from Mr. T. B. L. Baker of Gloucester, England, to Gen. Brinkerhoff, of the Ohio State Auditor, contains much matter of interest regarding the English "squires" or unpaid county justices. Mr. Baker says: "I've just had much writing on a new and troublesome yet not unpleasant matter. All recent reformers and influential men seem to be in a mood to talk over the report of the royal commissioners, which I lately sent you. Rather unluckily the proposal was begun by the paid superintendents, and I find a move never succeeds well unless it is led by those who ought to lead it. In this case, however, the reformers of men; so, no doubt, were the successors in your regiments in the army; but I think you would rather have any new measure, for the good of the regiment introduced by the officers. I am sure you and I, and all but a few, think that so slow, and so few of my fellow workers are left! But I have been writing to those, and to the sons of some others who are following their father's trade (as idle men, and I have read old thoughts with some dear old friends and some very fine old folks).

Let me, however, look back to some points in your former letter (which I have read over again with much pleasure), which want answering. You ask, "What is the use of a county session of English quarter sessions? You say 'do not understand how we have so many magistrates, or how they are selected,' and seeing my two sons among them you ask 'If it is a part of their inheritance?'" Men are delighted with the last, and I have decided myself as will probably every one. First, let me say, we are commonly, but wrongly, called magistrates. This term properly means men who have been working as barristers, but not being very successful, or like an evil life, taken a model, and, still, at 11,500 per annum, to take the less criminal business of some large town. All whose names you saw as attending quarter sessions are properly called justices, and serve without pay, and some of them, I suppose, by right. I have heard of no harsh work for the love of their country. I confess I am more proud as an unpaid justice than I should be as a stipendiary magistrate. Some nobleman or person of consideration is appointed by the queen, i.e., the premier of the court, and the other justices are appointed for life, to be lord lieutenant of the county where any squires reside. He recommends to the lord chancery for any squires residents in the county whom he thinks fit to be made a moderate amount of work with average good sense.

In this country, with a population of 385,000 and seventy miles long, we have about 230,000 justices. Many of them are evidently appointed, and some within five miles of their houses once a week or fortnight. A large number attend the first day of quarter sessions, when the finance of the county is debated, and as they are fair representation of the landlords of the county (all the tenants taking a fair deduction of the rates of the rent he would be otherwise given), they are the fittest body to manage the finances. If a road, bridge or building of the county wants attention, one or two squires, who are not in the service of the court, can get information, and superintend any useful work. Then there are some thirty or forty who act on committees of finance (examining all bills and accounts), lunatic asylums, departments of police, roads, &c., while some take specialities, as statistics of crime compared with other counties or countries, the lessening of vagrancy, &c.; so there's work enough for them if life it. The public-spirited among them can be ordered at the regular petty sessions, where there are always some experienced justices and legal clerks who can refer to acts of parliament when necessary.

Now, having explained "our justices," if you will not hard-working, some not very useful, we hold it good to have a large number interested even slightly in our work. To my sons I maintain (though it never struck me in that light before) that the office of justice is a part of the inheritance of the nobility and grandfather of an eminent justice in his day. My grandfather and father both had been chairmen had they not been rather dead. I have, one way or another, done some work for the county, and through the influence of my father, who for work probably led my friend Lord Duncannon to our lord lieutenant, to think that my sons were likely to be useful. My eldest son, Croghan, is pretty high up among the 300 besides managing the house, the school, the politics, the managing my estate, and getting a good deal of work in these times—does a host of small jobs. Henry, the younger, attends petty sessions, works a large farm, is the special friend of all the poor, is rich, too, and hunts a good deal. Now, we have not told you that they both inherit the office of justice!"

Some one sent me a month or so ago, an American paper with terrible accounts of the inundations at Cincinnati. I know not how the general climate of America has been for some years, but in England I find that there is very much of heat and weather as the two years have given us. In a few parts of the country they have suffered little, but throughout three-quarters of England we have suffered from inundations from 10 to 15 per cent, and sometimes where the land is marginated to simply nil. It is sad to see how many of our squires are letting, or shutting up, their houses, some living in one of their farm houses, or worse, going to some cheap place abroad. A few rich people are left whose wealth is either lost, or has been taken away, and some lavishly; and some people hear of £1,000 being spent on roses for one night's ball and fancy the higher classes are still very luxurious, but most of our old families are living with very reduced estates. But, though we have good grass land, we have suffered less than most, being lowered by more than 10 per cent. You in America are supposed to know more about the weather than we do. Can you explain it?

In the paper, the Cleveland Leader, I find a very fair class of the nobility of the city of Cleveland, owing to the majority of the Democratic Police Department. Of course I assume that this party view is about as vicious as the statements in our Tory and Radical papers, or, in any case, the want of sun are all the fault of the opposition. But the very mention of a Democratic police committee is one that Mr. Myers' bill wants another clause. Well-chosen and permanent prison officers are very important; but well-chosen and permanent officers at least are essential to a well-governed State. Your five unpaid directors must appoint the constable, or he must appoint the police.

Fred Sharon's Marriage.

From the San Francisco Alta.
There will be a general word of congratulation and many "told you so" heard when society learns for the first time that within the past twenty-four hours Fred Sharon, only son of Senator William Sharon, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mrs. Breckinridge, a daughter of the royal Texan. For more than a year the devotion of young Mr. Sharon to his bride has been well-known in society. The ceremony was performed yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Barrows, at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Trevis, the bride's parents, and was attended by the members of the Texan family, Senator Sharon, Mr. Newland and scores of other relatives.

At the close of the ceremony the young couple left for a wedding trip amid the hopes and wishes that the wedded life be a happy one. Fred Sharon is a fine, manly young man, of good health, and a favorite in society for his good nature and entertaining ways. For a rich man's son he is remarkably free from vanity and makes friends all around by his genial, affable ways. The bride is one of the most attractive and enterprising.
